100 Conversations Tour

Over the past month, I continued traveling across our district - meeting with local leaders, attending town meetings, visiting community events, and listening to residents.

One thing has become clear: while every community has its own character, families across Worcester and Middlesex share many of the same concerns - rising costs, housing affordability, protecting our communities, and building an economy where people can thrive.

Local Leadership: Lessons from Leominster

During my conversation with Leominster Mayor Dean Mazzarella, I was reminded that effective leadership begins with understanding the community you serve.

We discussed challenges facing cities and towns across our district: supporting seniors facing rising costs, creating housing opportunities, maintaining financial responsibility, and investing in the future.

What I Heard This Month

Three conversations that stayed with me:

- Housing: Young families want to stay in the communities they grew up in, but affordability is becoming harder.
- Cost of living: Seniors and working families are feeling pressure from rising expenses.
- Local decision-making: Residents want state government to respect local knowledge while helping communities address shared challenges.

Join the Campaign: Put a Sign in Your Yard

Yard signs are more than campaign signs - they are a way for neighbors to show that they believe our communities deserve thoughtful, independent leadership.

If you would like to display a yard sign, I would be grateful for your support. Please follow the link and fill out the yard sign form.

Grassroots Support: Help Build This Campaign

This campaign is built differently. I am running as an independent voice, powered by conversations with residents - meaning no special interests or party resources.

Every contribution, whether $25, $50, or $100, helps us continue reaching voters, sharing our message, and building a campaign focused on the issues that matter.

Looking Ahead

In August, I will continue visiting communities across the district and listening to residents. If you see me at a local event, please come say hello. I want to hear what matters most to you and your family.
